

Read All About It

Name _____

A newspaper article is written to inform the reader about an event that happened. Every good article includes the “five Ws” – who, what, where, when, and why. It is your job to write an informative article about the attack on April’s life by the serial killer. Don’t forget to include the “five Ws.” You should also include a title, your name as the author (called a “byline”), and make sure it is free of spelling and grammatical errors. Use the graphic organizer below to help you organize the information.
